Mine Workers Say Unionization Will Stop All Walk-outs

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Complete unionization of all the bituminous coal fields in the United States and elimination of non-union mine owners which have supplied a part of the country's coal supply during national strikes, will go far towards eliminating the general strike problem in the industry, a committee of the United Mine Workers of America reported to the United States Coal Commission.

The committee, composed of Ellis S. Latta, editor of the official paper of the union; John Moore, its executive representative; and Thomas Kennedy, a Pennsylvania district president, held that the non-union fields, by lowering scales of wages and continuing the industry, prevented stabilization in the whole industry.

As to local strikes, the committee said in answering queries of the commission, a large number are due to the conduct of "arrogant" party officers of mining companies, and to violations of wage contracts and working conditions by either side.

Among the members of the union, the committee agreed, there was "a very small minority" which was "reasonably violent," but the organization itself was said to have "a traditional policy of cherishing its contractors."

"The two general strikes in the industry that stand out in the minds of the public," the committee said, "were those of 1919 and 1922, and were directly due to the refusal of 85 coal operators to negotiate new wage agreements with employees."

"The committee further suggested that the commission employ investigators to look into actual cases of coal strikes and select 'thoroughly competent and experienced' new paper reporters for the task."

The commission was the second addressed to the commission by the miners' committee in response to a questionnaire sent out. Employees have not yet made public responses.

Last evening Postmaster Collins said, he had a few extra clerks to help out and that some worked as late as 11 o'clock that night. Especially during this month and the next, as the mail is very heavy at the present time, and to avoid delaying the mail, the postmaster would like to see the patrons of the postal service get their mail in early.

RED CROSS IS AN ALL-HELPFUL MOTHER
TO EX-SERVICE MENSays Colonel Parker, Head Veterans Bureau, During His Visit to Fayette County.

Colonel Charles R. Parker, director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, who was in Fayette county this week in the interest of cases of established ex-servicemen, has issued the following statement concerning the work of the American Red Cross, in dealing with ex-servicemen:

"We ex-servicemen think the American Red Cross is an all helpful mother and the Veterans' Bureau is in that mother an always helpful, caring friend. Whether it be a matter of calling the bureau's attention to an unawarded claim, or an ill man needing hospitalization, or of aiding the sick veteran over the time which must elapse before government aid can be offered, the Red Cross is always on the job with expert service and the necessary goods."

"In the Bureau's 'clean-up' campaign when effort was made to locate every ex-serviceman, no matter how remote his habitation, or how limited his powers of comprehension, the Red Cross workers brought to light hundreds of claims which might otherwise have lain hidden until too late for the individual to make legal application. Taking good advantage of what some one has aptly termed 'strategic position' the Red Cross worker has penetrated the alleys of the city and the wilderness of the mountain in her search for the man who did not know that the government stood ready to help him."

"The Veterans' Bureau's problem is a big one and we need the Red Cross, together, and with the help of all the other agencies and individuals, to serve, we will surely give most practical expression of America's appreciation of the debt which the nation owes the man or woman who gave health and strength in the country's cause."

"It is almost impossible to visit each voter but I have been in every voting precinct on at least one occasion since nominated," said Brown, while in Uniontown yesterday, "and I am still going strong. It is really wonderful the work that my friends in all parts of the county are accomplishing for me. They are alert against overconfidence for after all support plus votes assures success for any candidate," said the Fayette City man.

"Fayette county is certain to return a big Republican majority," said the candidate for state senate. "What there was some indications of a representative Democratic vote a year or six weeks ago this too, has vanished and the manner in which Pinchot is being boosted in the rural sections was one of the most pleasant bits of information that I obtained."

"I just want to take this occasion to warn my friends and supporters against taking anything for granted and to avoid appeals for complimentary votes," concluded Brown.

RAYMOND WILL GIVE HIS FINAL
TALK TONIGHTOpportunity to Ask Questions on Business Subjects
Afterward.MORE ESSENTIALS LISTED

Frank J. Raymond's ability to set forth facts and truths in a fashion seldom used by a public speaker drew a still larger crowd to the Carnegie Free Library Auditorium last night than he had in his opening subject Wednesday and tonight it is expected every seat will be filled. At the close of his hour's talk this evening he will answer questions put to him by his audience. Last night slips on which questions could be written were distributed and those desiring information placed them in a question box. They will be answered tonight.

Mr. Raymond did not use many preliminary words in opening his talk but delved immediately into the subject.

"We are here for an insight on how to use the things we have to get the things we want," he said.

"A business man must be three persons: First a teacher, second a persuader and third an executive."

He must be a teacher, it was explained, to expound facts and truths, "the better poster, the better paid," quoted Mr. Raymond. "You must know to make known. It's what you don't know that hurts."

"Business is a science of human nature," he said. "Knowledge is the dynamic of power, judgment is the wire over which the current is carried and enthusiasm is the voltage." He said a man must never stop learning and that the one who did was standing still.

"You can generally tell what a man is by what he does when he has nothing to do," he said. He advised everyone to get at least one idea a day about their business and use it.

Mr. Raymond described himself as a salesman.

"I want to sell you more stock in yourself and the best of fellowship, the best things in a community."

Speaking of salesmen, he delved into the manner in which some persons work and talk while employed.

"Good expressions make good impressions," was one of the phrases he gave in connection with this. He also recommended that "if you don't like the work you have to do, you will never get to do what you like." He advised that everyone "learn to like what you do," as there is where the first lesson of either working or striving is taken.

"Are you working at a job on an opportunity?" he asked. "Have you a chance for employment or improvement? To get ahead use your head, but do not use it to butt in. Use it to gather information."

"Right in each one of you," he declared, "is the power to get what you want out of yours; if by using yourself. There are three things to guard against: First, knocking competitors' goods; second, shooting over the heads of people by using terms and words they do not understand; third, misrepresentation. You needn't tell all you know but be sure to know what you tell."

He urged that people develop the "I will" determination.

"If you want to succeed," he said, "you must have self-control. It is the cornerstone of success. Say to yourself, 'I will,' and then do it. Decide, start, stick, finish."

He capped the fashion of slowing down and getting into monotonous habits. "The only difference between a rut and a grave is the width and depth of it. Many are dead but are not sensible of it," he said.

Mr. Raymond said he would talk this evening on "Getting Results." In this connection he will deal with executives, the third requirement of being a success in business.

Covers for about sixty-eight young people were laid at a well appointed banquet given last night in the dining room of the First Methodist Protestant Church by the Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society of which Miss Mary Parkhill is superintendent. The society colors, green and white, prevailed and formed a striking contrast with the beautifully decorated autumn leaves which were effectively arranged about the room. A social hour followed and a most enjoyable time was had. Selections by an orchestra composed of young people of the church were delightful features of the evening. Previous to the banquet the regular business meeting was held. Surprise for Mrs. Ellenberger.

One of the most complete birthday surprises ever staged in this section was that given Mrs. J. D. Ellenberger of Spoons Hill, Uniontown, on the occasion of her 55th anniversary. The planning of the surprise was the work of the ladies of the West End who, appreciating the fact that their husbands some time ago by Mr. Ellenberger, desired to reciprocate. As nothing could be done while Mrs. Ellenberger was in the house a plan was executed by which she was taken to Conneltsville in an automobile on an errand. While she was gone the guests began to arrive. The visitors presented Mrs. Ellenberger with an elaborate birthday cake bearing 55 small candles, the work of Mrs. S. S. Friend of Conneltsville. RAILROADS USING THEIR RESOURCES FOR ROLLING STOCK

Buying More Cars and Locomotives Than 10-Year Average.

MANY FOR REPLACEMENT

Because of inability to buy Normal Equipment During the Past Few Years; Traffic Movement Almost as Great As in 1920, Record Year.

"The orders the railways have placed thus far this year for locomotives and freight cars show that they are using all available resources to increase their facilities," says the Railway Age. "The number of freight cars ordered this year to October 5 was 122,953. This exceeds the average annual records of both the last five and the last 10 years. In fact in only three years of the last 10 were larger orders placed, namely in 1913, 1914 and 1916. The average number of cars ordered annually in the 10 years ending with 1921 was 106,459, and in the five years ending with 1921 it was 94,619.

"The number of locomotives which had been ordered to October 15 was 1,792. The average number ordered annually in the 10 years ending with 1921 was 2,118. Thus, orders placed in the first forty-one weeks of this year do not equal the annual average orders of the last decade. They do, however, exceed the average number ordered annually in the five years ending with 1921, which was only 1,483.

"The new equipment bought will not, of course, result in an equivalent net increase in the amount of equipment in service. The average number of locomotives retired from service annually in the 10 years ending with 1921 was 1,615. This is only 177 less than the total number ordered thus far this year. The average number of freight cars scrapped and retired from service annually in the 10 years ending with 1921 was 76,760. This is only 46,193 less than the total freight cars ordered thus far this year. Because of inability of the railways within recent years to buy a normal amount of new equipment the number of locomotives and cars that ought to be retired is now unusually large.

"But two and one-half months of the year 1922 still remained when these statistics regarding the orders placed this year were compiled. Substantial orders are still being placed and probably will continue to be until the end of the year. They will provide for a normal year's net increase in equipment, but will hardly make up for any of the large deficiency in equipment which has accrued within recent years.

"The comparative large orders for locomotives and cars being placed evidently are predicted on the belief of railway managers that traffic will continue to move in increasing volume.

"In the fall of 1920 the railways handled the largest business that they ever did in their history. The total number of cars loaded with freight in the four weeks ending with October 11, 1922, was only 2.9 per cent less than the number loaded in the corresponding weeks of 1920, but there are differences in the manner of the various classes of commodities handled in the two periods. Study of these differences may suggest what future tendencies are likely to be.

"Many people believe that the reason why the railways are now handling such a large volume of freight is that the coal strike has forced upon them an abnormal tonnage of coal and that therefore the present excess in the demand for transportation over the supply will be temporary. The fact is that in the four weeks ending with October 11, 1922, the number of cars loaded with coal moved was 13 per cent less than in the same week of 1920. Furthermore, shipments of ore were 33 1/2 per cent less, of forest products five per cent less, and of coke 39 per cent less. How, then, was it that the total shipments were only three per cent less?

"Shipments of grain and grain products were 12 1/2 per cent larger than in 1920; of livestock, 15 1/2 per cent larger and of less-than-carload merchandise 11 per cent larger. The farmer is sending his crops to market and getting his money for them as fast as he can. He was holding his crops back in 1920 and not getting his money for them. In view of these facts, he is not likely to be a larger purchaser in 1923 than he was in 1921. "Shipments of L. C. L. merchandise thus far this year have been much greater than ever before. They consist chiefly of finished products. Retail merchants must have been buying them from wholesale merchants, and they from manufacturers, in large amounts or they would not have been shipped in record-breaking volume. Since this has been the case, does it not seem probable that there will be great activity in general manufacturing for months to come? When there is great activity in manufacturing there is a large demand for fuel and raw materials. Those engaged in the construction business say there is prospect of a great deal of construction work. Do these things not indicate the prospect of an increase in shipments of the classes of commodities which are not now moving in as large volume as two years ago?

"Unless all past experience is misleading, the demands upon the railways in months and years immediately ahead are going to increase and they will have use for more additional facilities than they will be able to provide."

IF KIDNEYS ACHE FLUSH WITH SALT'S

Harmless Way to Clean Your Kidneys and Help Bladder.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from rich and spicy food. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, stinging sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most often calls for it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most subtle ailments to overcome. Get about 100 ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continuing this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the urine so it is no longer a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the juice of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Have you a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink, which often quickly relieves bladder irritation.—Advertisement.

And—

You Wonder How You Got That Way!

Those whose daily work keeps their bodies in an unnatural position wonder why they constantly suffer various ailments, such as kidney, stomach and liver trouble, not excluding constant headaches.

This unnatural posture cramps and distorts the spinal column causing the spinal nerves to become pinched. The result of this nerve "pinching" is a great variety of ailments, such as mentioned above.

CHIROPRACTIC generally prevents and eliminates these conditions by adjusting the cause. In other words, by removing the impingement of the nerves thus allowing the organs to receive 100% of vitality.

This office aims to give the very best in CHIROPRACTIC service, as taught by the highest authorities of CHIROPRACTIC. We invite your candid investigation.

Peters, one of the finest emulators of actors in pictures today. He brings to the part a keen and sympathetic beauty of that picturesque action is reproduced on the screen. Throughout the photography is of the highest class. Miss Dugan, director, gathered a notable cast for the production, including several players who are stars in their own right.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week William Desmond will be seen in "The Parish Priest."

THE ORPHAN.

"OUR LEADING CITIZEN," a comedy drama, with Thomas Meighan in the leading role, is the feature picture today and tomorrow at this theatre. The combined talents of the famous American humorist, George Ade and Thomas Meighan, the film star, Alfred Green, director, and an able supporting cast, have resulted in one of the most entertaining potboilers that has been seen at this theatre in weeks.

It is the story of a young lawyer in a small town, who is devoted to fishing and who, at the outbreak of the World War, enlists and returns a hero. In France he meets again a girl he has admired back home. She returns first, and pines for him, but his reception, on his modesty prompts him to hide his light under a bushel. Finally he is caught and properly "reached" by the populace. He is groomed for Congress, but refuses to agree to certain corrupt demands and leaving, as he believes, that the girl has tipped him on to further her brother's ends, disappears from town. Later he is brought back when the election and weds the girl who was always true to herself and to him. Mr. Meighan is ideally cast, with the natural, possible characterization of a true Ade hero. Lois Wilson is charming as the girl; Theodore Roberts, as the girl's father, is excellent.

Will Carleton, Laurence Wheat, Charles Ogle and others appear in a well balanced cast.

"NICE PEOPLE," a Paramount picture starring Dolores Costello, Wallace Ford and Conrad Nagel will be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE TRAIL OF HATE," the leading attraction today and tomorrow at this theatre, presents Dr. Rex Wilson in one of the best roles of his career. The picture is a blood-drenched thriller and provides a splendid entertainment. A selected comedy is also included on the program.

Looking for Barbecue? If so, read our advertising columns and you will find them.

A Woman's Way

"I tried for four months to get my wife to try Mr. Y's Wonderful Remedy, which I know helped a friend of mine who was suffering from stomach trouble. She resisted her cure was difficult. I finally had to bribe her with a new dress. The first dose produced remarkable results, bringing up her constitution and restoring her appetite. She can now eat things she hadn't been able to for many years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the extra acid and allows the influence of which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including indigestion. One dose will convince or money refunded. A. A. Clarke and drug stores everywhere.—Advertisement.

COAL COMMISSION BEGINS ITS WORK OF FINDING FACTS

Solicits Advice and Suggestion
On List of Topics Specified in the Act.

INQUIRY BROAD IN SCOPE

Covering Matters Relating to Ownership; Cost of Production and Sales; Profits, Wastes in Mining; Causes of Strikes; Living Conditions, etc.

The Coal Fact-Finding Commission has started its inquiry into the industry by addressing a letter to the anthracite and bituminous operators and the United Mine Workers, soliciting advice and suggestions from each group, to be submitted in writing, "as to the best means of ascertaining all the facts pertinent to the investigation the commission has been directed by law to make."

Accompanying the letter is a list of the various topics upon which the law creating the commission requires it to develop facts or make recommendations. Requesting careful study of the list of topics is three groups of persons interested in the mining industry ask to give advice on the following points:

(a) What specific data should be secured under each one of the topics enumerated in the law in order to carry out adequately the direction of the law?

(b) What, in your judgment would be the best and most practicable method for the commission to adopt for securing these data?

(c) What, if any, topics should the commission investigate in addition to those already enumerated in the law, in order to give to Congress and the public complete information necessary to the proper understanding of the conditions in the coal industry?

(d) To what extent are you in position to cooperate with the commission in securing necessary data in such manner as will eliminate in the largest possible degree any basis for criticism of the accuracy or the validity of the data which have been secured?

"In addition to the above the commission further desires you to advise it in writing at some date in the near future, tentatively:

(e) What, in your judgment, are the elements that have caused and are causing the acknowledged demoralization in the coal industry," and which are working hardship alike upon the parties engaged in the production of coal and the consuming public?

(f) What, in your judgment, are the practical remedies that would eliminate any or all of the elements that you feel are responsible for the condition?"

The list of topics referred to above is: 1. Ownership and titles of the mines; 2. Prices of coal; 3. The organization and persons connected with the coal industry; 4. Cost of production; 5. Profits realized by operators or owners of said mines during the last ten years; 6. Profits of other persons or corporations having to do with production, distribution, or sale of coal; 7. Labor costs; 8. Wages paid; 9. Wage contracts; 10. Irregular production; 11. Waste of coal; 12. and suggestions as to the remedy for the same; 13. The conditions generally under which coal is produced; 14. Distribution.

"15. The causes which from time to time induce strikes, thereby depriving interstate traffic of their fuel supply and otherwise interrupting the flow of interstate commerce."

"16. All facts, circumstances, or conditions which would be deemed helpful in determining and establishing a wise and efficient policy by the government relative to said industry."

"17. Standardizing the mines upon the basis of their economic productive capacity and regarding the closing down of mines which by reason of their natural limitations or other conditions, fall below the standard."

"18. Ascertaining and standardizing the cost of living for mine workers and the living conditions which must be supplied or afforded in order to surround the workmen with reasonable comforts and standardizing as far as practicable the amount of work a man shall perform for a reasonable wage recognizing the value and effect of such surroundings in respect of their efficiency."

"19. Standardizing a basis of arriving at the overhead cost of production and distributing the coal, including delivery at the door of the consumer, recognizing in this computation that the standardized cost of mining the mine should be the first and irreducible item of expense."

Efficiency in Freight Service Has Increased

The improvement in railroad transportation in the first seven months of this year, compared with the same period last year, is seen in some figures of freight train operation based on the report, on 179 Class C roads and just published by the Bureau of Statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

For instance, the ratio of the movement of loaded cars to the total car movement has increased. In the first seven months of 1921, the movement of loaded cars represented 62.2 per cent of the total car-miles, while for the same period of this year this figure is 65.7 per cent, representing an increase of 3.5 per cent.

The number of cars per train in the first seven months of 1921 averaged 34, while in 1922 the average number was 38.3 cars per train.

The train load figures, expressed in net tons per train, in 1921 was 642 tons, while for the first seven months in this year this averaged 650 tons.

The average locomotive miles per locomotive day—which means the number of miles traveled per day per locomotive in service—has increased from 48.2 miles in 1921 to 48.8 miles in this year.

The figures in "traffic density" showing the net ton miles carried over each mile of road per day, reflects an increase of from 3,884 net ton miles in 1921 to 3,922 net ton miles in this year.

The number of pounds of coal used per 1,000 gross ton miles shows a decrease of 5 pounds; in 1921 an average of 154 pounds of coal were required to move 1,000 gross tons one mile, while this year an average of only 149 pounds has been used.

James P. Walsh, vice president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company in charge of sales, has resigned.

Region Throws Off Strike
Incubus; Longest Disturbed
Period In Entire HistoryCar and Labor Shortage
Hamper Mill Operation

The shortage of labor and the lack of railroad equipment are retarding operation in steel mills. It is stated, if workers could be found and cars obtained, output of the mills would go forward at a bound, it is claimed. In Pittsburgh and Wheeling the situation is easier because the rivers afford a freight highway for bringing in coal and coke and for interchanging steel in progress of manufacture between various works.

Some manufacturers predict that no matter what the demand may be, transportation and labor will limit the production to about what it now is for at least some months to come. There, however, likely will be an increase in production for there are several idle stacks ready to blow in just as soon as coke requirements can be met. It is currently reported that another wage advance in labor may be announced within the next few weeks.

Industries in the Shenandoah Valley not including some plants that have not operated for two or more years are running about 75 per cent of capacity. Operations are averaging around 80 per cent in the Mahoning Valley, but it is the opinion of leaders in the industry that this ratio will not be maintained through the winter. Some are predicting that it will sag to 60 per cent.

OVEN, PLANT RECOVERY

Special to The Weekly Courier.

After a lapse of 30 more or less long and trying weeks the coke region has at last thrown off the incubus of the sympathy strike which began on April 1, making much the most prolonged period in the history of the belching coking industry during which conditions other than industrial depression have operated to curtail output, disorganize plant forces, retard routine which has provided almost uninterrupted for the past 28 years.

The additions in active plants and ovens, slightly greater efficiency in operation and a perceptible easement in the transportation situation, enabled the region to attain an output of 159,780 tons last week, thereby exceeding the pre-strike total by more than 9,000 tons and establishing the best record of the year to date. In fact, so great a tonnage has not been produced during a single week since that remote date; the output was but 105,930 tons, or only 6,850 tons greater than that of last week.

Due to the inadequacies in transportation service the increase in production does not precisely illustrate the extent to which the recovery has been made. This is better shown in a comparison of the production facilities in use at the time the strike began and when its effects were so decisively overcome last week.

On April 1 there were but 62 plants and 11,944 ovens in blast in the entire region, 35 plants and 7,412 ovens in the Connellsville and 27 plants and 4,532 ovens in the Lower Connellsville district. On October 28 the number of plants in blast was 93; ovens, 11,935; gains of 31 plants and 2,521 ovens, respectively for the whole region. By districts the Connellsville alone had added by four to twenty its plants in operation, having had 35 on April 1 as against 31 on October 28, but it had increased its ovens to 9,854, or 2,112 more than were in the running on April 1.

The Lower Connellsville district has made the most pronounced recovery in the matter of firing up plants, having 42 in commission last Saturday as against 27 on April 1. But in the resumption of ovens this district is still 1,017 short of the pre-strike mark, having 3,565 in blast last Saturday as compared with 4,582 on April 1.

An between the producing interests the furnace operators have made the greatest progress in oven recovery. On the day the strike began they were running 7,914 ovens. During the 30 weeks intervening until Oct. 28 they had kept in blast or returned to activity 9,357, or 1,443 more ovens than at the outbreak of the strike. Having been hindered by the furnace operators longer than the furnace interests in taking steps toward resumption, the merchants had but 3,632 ovens in production October 28, or 418 fewer than on April 1. Among individual operators the H. C. Frick Company, having the largest number, but not the largest percentage, of its plants closed by the strike has made the largest additions. From 16 plants and 4,672 ovens in operation at the high tide of the strike, it has advanced to 31 plants and 8,870 ovens, or 2,230 more ovens than were being operated the day the strike struck the region its stunning blow.

The augmentation of producing facilities continues without halt. Last week witnessed the return to the active list of nine plants, two so long inactive that they had been regarded as permanently down and out, and a total of 1,176 ovens. Among the operators recently joining the ranks have been Lincoln Coal & Coke Company, Lynch Coal & Coke Company and Consolidated Coke Company. W. J. Hainey, and Washington Coal & Coke Company, Fayette Coke Company, Country Coke Company, and others are making oven additions weekly. The Union Consolidated Coke Company is firing up its Katharine plant this week.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, October 28, was 159,780 tons, distributed as follows: Connellsville, 149,140; a gain of 7,120 tons; Lower Connellsville, 50,370; a gain of 5,610 tons; or a total gain of 12,730 tons, as compared with a gain of 9,010 tons during the preceding week.

By interests production was: Furnace, 109,110, an increase of 7,800 tons; merchant, 50,670, an increase of 5,250 tons, as compared with increases of 2,610 and 3,110 tons respectively during the week ended October 21.

The oven output of 1,176 were distributed, 470 furnace; 706 merchant. In detail the additions were, furnace: Blinn, 20; Continental No. 2, 15; Crossland, 10; Junata, 38; Kyle, eight; Lament No. 2, 25; Marguerite, 99; Mutual, 10; Phillips, 40; South-west No. 1, 15; Standard, 50; Judge Wasson Out With Endorsement of Pinchot; Is "Intensely Practical"

Special to The Courier.
PITTSBURG, Nov. 3.—Former Judge Henry Wasson is out with a formal endorsement of Gifford Pinchot, declaring the Republican candidate for governor is "intensely practical." Affirming his support for the whole Republican ticket in the election next Tuesday, Judge Wasson said:

"In the 25 or more years in which I have been more or less actively connected with politics, there has never been a time when anyone claiming allegiance to the Republican party could, with quite so much pride and good conscience, go to the polls and vote for every candidate, as at the present time. Indeed, it ought to be assumed a privilege on the part of every voter, regardless of his party affiliations, to be able to cast his ballot for candidates like Pepper and Reed for United States senators, and Gifford Pinchot for governor—men of courage and independence, possessed of the highest character, and conspicuous for their fitness to hold the exalted offices to which they aspire."

"I have known Mr. Pinchot for many years, and have been associated with him in some of his public activities, and if he is elected, as I am sure he will be, he will quickly establish a new order in the affairs of our state's government, and thereby reflect the greater credit on the Republican party and its management."

"I have heard it said that he is visionary and impractical, that he lacks stability. Nothing can be farther from the truth, as anyone who has ever worked with Mr. Pinchot, knows. He is intensely practical. He can be of practical service unless he has vision, clear perception of wrongs and their remedies, and the industry and courage to give effect to his vision."

"Gifford Pinchot sees right and Gifford Pinchot walks right. Unfortunately, we list in our citizenry a goodly number who, from selfish motives, want a continuance of the established order of things. In the estimation of such, the candidate for public office who is deemed to possess the fiber and snap to bring about wholesome changes, is always branded a visionary."

"With the inauguration of Mr. Pinchot will come a new order. Not that we are going to have a host of radical legislations and new laws at Gifford's birth. But we will have a man in the executive chair who devotes his whole time and his whole heart and soul to the commonwealth's interests, and a body of employees who will partake of his spirit and be up on their toes, as it were, at all times."

"New laws and new men are not so much needed as the enforcement of the statute books, and a new spirit, and a new dedication to service on the part of many excellent men now in public office."

"Pennsylvania is an overwhelmingly Republican state, and the Republicans will see that the man who represents in his personality and record the best aspirations of the party, will be elected governor next Tuesday."

MORE PRONOUNCED DULLNESS IN MARKET FOR FINISHED STEEL

No Decrease in Consumption, Rather Deliberate on Old Orders; Big Iron Very Dull, Even Soft.
Special to The Weekly Courier

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The American Metal Market and Daily Iron & Steel Report will review the steel and iron trade tomorrow as follows:
The dullness in the finished steel markets is still more pronounced. There is a fair degree of activity in sheets, in which mills are now able to make prompt shipment, nearly all other lines being conspicuously quiet. The sluggishness of turnover in the market does not indicate that consumption of steel has decreased. Consumers are receiving better deliveries than formerly, while they feel free to draw upon such stocks as they may have, now that the coal strike is over and the work of the railroad congestion is probably passed.

While the market is dull as to buying, jobbers and manufacturing consumers generally are urging mills to make shipment, particularly in the case of orders placed long ago, which of course are at the lower prices. The steel industry is operating at about 70 per cent of its capacity, after several weeks past. Production of ingots is at a rate of about 26,000,000 or 27,000,000 tons a year.

Supplies of steel are slightly in excess of production, as our supplies are now sufficient to enable mills to move some of their accumulations. While the condition as to car supplies is better it is by no means easy. At Connellsville coke has held quite firmly in the past week, after its recent drop in price.

The pig iron markets are all very dull, and in most districts the market is somewhat soft. Valley basic iron has sold at $23, a decline of $1. Sheet bars are offered freely in several quarters, and could be bought at $18 or less. There is no important inquiry.

The American Sheet & Tin Plate Company is expected to name prices next week, on the plate for the half year and on sheets for the first quarter. The company has lately been out of the market on sheets and has little if any tin plate to offer for sale outside of this year.

The iron and steel market in all branches being dull, an eventual readjustment in prices is to be expected.

Final returns for 1921 from coke operations in the United States have been summarized in a press bulletin which shows that nearly 29,000,000 tons of bituminous coal were consumed in by-product coke ovens, from which was produced 26,000,000 tons of coke and 1,800,000 tons of breeze or screenings. In addition to these primary products, approximately $60,000,000 worth of by-product (tar, ammonia, gas, light oil, derivatives, etc.) were obtained and sold.

Copies of this press bulletin, giving further details, may be had upon application to the director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

MADE CRUELTY TO CATTLE UNLAWFUL

British Noble Gets First Law
Passed in 1822.

HUMAN SOCIETIES CELEBRATE

Richard Martin introduced in the British Parliament the first Act providing for punishment for the "ill-treatment of cattle"—forced its passage in the face of strong opposition—King George IV named him "Humanity Martin."

Braving the opposition of colleagues and opponents, Richard Martin introduced in the British parliament in 1822 an act providing for punishment for the "ill-treatment of cattle" and by the force of his personality forced its passage as a law.

Human societies throughout England and the United States are now observing the centenary of the enactment of this law which for the first time in any country made it unlawful to abuse and mistreat animals.

Was Noted Duellist.
The nobleman had infinite personal courage and was a duellist of note. But with his courage a ruling duelling prohibition was a genuine Irish humor, wild and turbulent at times. He always loved animals and disliked ill-treatment of them.

After introducing his bill Martin was asked to withdraw it for amendment and introduction at the following session. One opponent declared he would not see why, under the terms of the bill, a punishment could not be attached to the holding of lobsters and the eating of live oysters.

To all opposition Martin replied with more vigorous support and made a strong appeal at the second reading. After his appeal a vote was taken and the "bill" passed 23 against 18 "nays." The bill passed its third reading in committee, June 7, 1822.

To Martin, also, belongs the credit for the first conviction under the law he fostered. Martin appeared as complainant against a driver who had mercilessly beaten a donkey. The animal was dragged to court, and Martin so impressed the court with the evidence the donkey bore of its master's cruelty that the driver was found guilty, much to the surprise of on-lookers, who crowded the court room.

Animal Baiting Banned.
Less than a year after Martin's death at Boulogne, France, in 1834, his original act was amended, and bull and bear baiting and cock fighting were prohibited throughout the British Isles.

While credit is given the great and general court of animals, in 1811, for passing an act declaring that "no man shall exercise any tyranny toward any brute creatures which usually are kept for the use of man." Martin's act is recognized as the first law expressly forbidding ill-treatment of animals.

Two years after the passage of the act Martin secured several friends, realizing the law would be valueless without proper enforcement, organized the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Queen Victoria later gave her approval to the addition of the word "Royal" to the title. From the society originated the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and later the state societies.

MILL TOWN-COKER GRID CLASSIC TOMORROW; FANS OF BOTH TOWNS HOPEFUL

Locals Show Optimistic Front but Scottsdale Is in Same Mood.

TEAM HAS CONFIDENCE

The stage is all set and it is only the matter of passing hours now until the Connelville High School meets the Scottsdale High team at Fayette Field tomorrow afternoon in the annual clash. The game will be a memorable one in Coker grid circles, it is indicated by the extensive preparations being made for cheering and hoisting a big crowd.

Four years ago Connelville won its last victory over the Mill towners. In 1918 Connelville scored a 50-0 victory. In 1919 a 0-0 tie was played at Scottsdale and the next season the Blue and White out it won by a 7-0 score on a fluke touchdown. Last year the team defeated Connelville at Scottsdale.

The Cokers looked good in their scrimmage last night. The boys were hitting the line with their heads down and driving with force. All the fans want a repetition of the game played last Saturday, with just a little added pep all the way through.

Tonight at 8 o'clock there will be a monster rally at the High School Auditorium. This is for students, graduates and every football fan who likes to mingle with a crowd and stir enthusiasm to a fever pitch. There will be speakers who will give brief, part addresses on "Sportsmen." Other features for the evening have been arranged by the High School students.

Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the students will meet at the High School to march to Fayette Field in a body. It will be the first time this year the Coker delegation has shown anything like real support and now the plans turned into a strong movement with "every student present" as its slogan.

Ends has filled the center position and Pierce is filling the guard job formerly held by the new pivot man. There are no other changes in the Coker squad. Calm confidence reigns on the team and the feeling among those who have followed the destinies of High School this season are that Scottsdale is doomed.

Scottsdale will be here in scores because regardless of what the Cokers may feel, the Mill towners can only win another victory for their own team. The Scottsdale delegation will arrive at 1:30 o'clock on special cars while many others will come by auto, mobile. The game will be called at 2 o'clock.

Overheard between two young girl students of the High School: "Oh, say, are you going to the game tomorrow? Gee, kid, you want to go, I am. I'm just going to yell my lungs out. I'm so ambitious."

Every word was stressed with enthusiasm and if the remarks are to be taken as an example of the feeling which is circulating in the High School a tremendous crowd is assured.

Connellsvillians will extend every courtesy to its neighbors when Scottsdale comes here tomorrow. The clean standards of the city a town of real sports will be maintained regardless of what the outcome of the game.

"Best Scottsdale" is the slogan printed on diamond-shaped orange cards being worn by students and football fans in the city.

W. G. Davis, High School principal, is taking active steps to create interest to the highest possible degree.

ALVERTON, Nov. 3.—A citizens' meeting will be held in the High School building tonight. All citizens are invited to attend. FLORIDA CATCHER WAS WONDER ON THROWING

"One of the catchers in the Florida State league last year was a wonder on throwing to second, but he always made the ball bound on the ground once before reaching the field," says Joe Tabor.

"You probably won't believe it, but he was so accurate he wore out a small spot just back of the pitcher where he made that ball hop."

"One afternoon it rained hard and a puddle of mud formed in that spot. And do you know the catcher would not play until they had placed a pie tin on the spot so he could make the ball hop in the accustomed fashion."

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and stringency could be made very happy if it had good health accompaniment. It is the basis of good health, as everyone knows, upon which the use of 69 is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate, it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 25 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advanced years is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Lactogen and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or grip. It is a miracle to think you need a violent cathartic or purgative, calomel, castor oil and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. E. M. Burgess of Knibb, N. C., who is 72, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Charles C. Harnum of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., wasted fifteen years and considerable money on other remedies before finding steady relief with Syrup Pepsin.

See Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, pain or night cramps. In my thousands of letters people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years and it is the most widely distributed family laxative in the world.

PETEY — A PU is THE CRUEST TYPE OF HUMOR — BY C. A. VIGOR

TO DEPART FROM GIRLISH FROCKS

Coming Winter May See Passing of Flapper Type of Dress, Writer Asserts.

BIAPED ON CLASSIC LINES

Important Part Is Played by Decorative—Circular Effects Obtained by Godets and Panels—Wide Skirts for Evening.

Fashions are becoming more sophisticated. The flapper has met a formidable rival in the woman. So this winter, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, may see the passing of the flapper type of dress.

All of the new styles show a strong tendency to depart from the juvenile types so prevalent during the past few years. They embody dignity and importance, two characteristics which of late years have been almost entirely lacking in dress.

The long skirt and the many variations of drapery now in use have helped to bring about these changes. The important part played by drapery rather than the amateur dressmaker. No more can she hope to be dressed in the height of fashion in the simple chemise frock which she made so easily. No she must include in her wardrobe gowns draped on classic lines.

The ways in which drapery has facilitated in the position that it shall take in regard to the dress is something astonishing. It begins by adorning the side of the frock. After assuming numerous other positions it now elects to make the front the most important part of the gown.

Circular Effects Obtained.

Many think it comparatively easy to popularize a new style and that women are waiting to welcome anything new and striking in dress. This is not so. A real change in fashions is brought about very, very slowly. It is months, sometimes a year, after a style is shown before it is accepted even in a limited way. Take, for instance, the circular skirt. Two years ago designers put their best effects into models with circular skirts in an endeavor to make this fashion popular, and during the intervening time the best creators of styles have from time to time tried to force them. But it is only this autumn that we see this type of skirt making real progress.

It is not unusual to see skirts that are plain and tight across the back with circular panels in the front and at the sides, thus making a compromise between the straight line and the circular.

While daytime dresses show fan-shaped godets and front drapings, there is a strong tendency toward really wide skirts for the evening. Skirts are very long. Lanvin, always the exponent of youth in dress, makes her models longer than those of any other dressmaker in Paris. So we may expect to see the extremely long-skirted frock taken up by young girls. This always is favorable to the success of a fashion, because all women like to appear youthful, and the style that youth elects to make its own invariably becomes the prevailing mode.

Deviate From Bateau Neckline. Designers are trying to do away with the popular bateau neckline, and in their endeavor have introduced several interesting outlines for the necks of dresses, among the most unusual being the one-sided effect. There is the deep V-shaped neck cut high at the back and extremely low in front. This type requires a gilet or modesty piece, as the French call it.

A new French frock in which the one-sided effect is exaggerated almost to the point where it becomes bizarre. It is important, as it stresses the strong tendency toward one-sided effects in both neckline and sleeve. On one side the dress is cut so high that it nearly forms a collar and slopes so far to the opposite side that it falls over the shoulder. The right side shows one long, tight sleeve, while there is no sleeve for the left side.

One-Side Trimming. Another model emphasizing this tendency in dress is of pure Greek inspiration, the drapery falling in classic lines from the right shoulder. This is a Poiret model in rose, blue and white silk, with a very unusual trimming consisting of crocheted bands wrapping about the shoulders.

Hats as well as dresses have come under the influence of one-sided trimming. Some unusual trimmings appear. A lace scarf tied in a tailored bow on a plain velvet hat is quite out of the ordinary. Following in the train of the long trailing curls used on hats during the past summer, the ends of this lace scarf fall to the wearer's knees. This is a simple type of hat, but extremely picturesque and graceful.

Motor lace is far more popular in autumn millinery than it has ever been, for nothing less practical as a hat trimming could well be imagined. Many of the high-crowned hats of the Second Empire period show on-shoulder trimmings in the form of birds or clusters of small feathers.

Great extravagance is apparent in the lavish use of fur trimmings on this autumn's clothes. Chinchilla and monkey head the list. Monkey is black, is cut in big leaves, though gray and sable color will be much in demand. Narrow double fringes of monkey set together with a fancy braid are much used as a trimming.

There is every indication that many short capes will be worn—that in cape collars nearly large enough to be considered wraps. It is in these places that the fabric shows his ability in making patterns in one fu and fitting the interstices with a see and fit.

Do business girls make good wives?

Opinions differ! One man says, "the business trained girl views home problems in a business light and obeys today's business demand—guard carefully against unnecessary small expenses." But he married a business girl.

Another man believes: "The former business woman may fret under home restraints." But his wife had never been in business.

Experience shows, however, that most wives do apply economical business methods in the home whether or not they have learned them in the office. For they know that careful management reaps its own fine reward in a calm home atmosphere—free from nagging money worries.

Our own experience gives us at least one example of house-keeping thrift in the eager reception of Brednut—the new approved spread for bread.

Pasteurized milk! Tropical nuts! A delicious new home economy!

As a spread for bread, rolls or hot biscuits, Brednut has a perfectly delicious flavor. Unless your husband is an exception to the many we have talked with, he will not be able to detect the slightest "difference."

Notice, too, how your children enjoy Brednut. You would like to read bulletins of the U. S. Department of Agriculture which explain the energy value and digestibility of foods like Brednut. Such commendation is easy to understand when you know that Brednut is made from pasteurized milk and tropical nuts.

Pure white Brednut is sold by your grocer in pound pats. With each pound he will give you a wholesome vegetable material which quickly colors Brednut to a rich golden yellow.

The Palmer School of Chiropractic

CHIROPRACTIC FOUNTAIN HEAD
DAVENPORT, IOWA

That the health of mankind depends upon the integrity of the spine has been proven in tens of thousands of cases. No discovery in the odd 5,000 years of experimentation with the health of the human body has proved of greater value than that of Chiropractic.

Thinking men realize the necessity of perpetuating the benefits of the discovery made in 1895 by D. D. Palmer. Among the very first was B. J. Palmer, the son of the discoverer, to start a school for the education of the ambitious man and woman in the beneficent science.

Modestly the beginning was made some twenty years ago in one room of his residence. Since that time the growth has been so rapid and the influx of students so great, big buildings were erected and today, almost three blocks of city property on Brady Street, in Davenport, Iowa, "The Chiropractic City," is now occupied by buildings devoted to the teaching of the science.

Thirty-six instructors daily teach great classes, numbering in all some three thousand students, in the spacious rooms. The training consists in fundamentals of the human body, the philosophy, science and art of Chiropractic over a period of 3 years.

Students come from all over the world; they represent every walk in life. Owing to the demand for Chiropractic education there have sprung up many schools and each has its following, ranging from a few devoted students to the biggest of them all, the one located at Davenport. The graduates from these schools will go into the fields in due time and carry the healing message to suffering mankind.

Due to the great schools, Chiropractic is now spoken of as the "Chiropractic World," and used in the same sense as the Automobile World, the Aviation World, The Age of Wireless, etc. What the schools and colleges of Chiropractic will do in the matter of educating the nations' peoples in the next twenty-five years is beyond computation from a health point of view.

JEALOUSY CAUSE OF GIRL'S MURDER AT MT. PLEASANT

Jesse Gardner, Slayer, Had Been in Love With Bertie Meigs for Years.

AFFECTION NOT RETURNED

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 2.—Jesse Gardner, who admitted shooting and killing Bertie Meigs yesterday, waived a hearing and was held for court by Justice of the Peace L. S. Rhodes without bail. He was taken to the Greenburg jail.

Years ago when the Gardner and Meigs families came to this vicinity they lived at Standard, in a double house, and with the death of Mrs. Gardner Mrs. Meigs took Jesse under her care and practically reared him. Gardner joined the Regular Army and was still much infatuated with the Meigs girl who did not reciprocate his attentions. She married and was divorced. Gardner, a model soldier, received an honorable discharge and came back, for a time making his home with the Meigs family and still paying attention to Bertie, who made it plain to him that she did not care for him. Some time ago Gardner was said to have taken bicarbonate of mercury in an effort to end his life, because, he said, he could not have the Meigs girl.

Gardner, it was said, was drinking yesterday. He walked into the Meigs home and asked the girl what he owed for washing and when she told him, he answered her with: "Here is your pay," and drawing an automatic pistol from his pocket, killed her.

Twenty-five cases of measles have been reported, 15 of them Wednesday and Thursday. Health Officer Harry McIndoe said physicians think the large number of cases is due to the weather. Unless there is some way to check the disease it is feared it may become epidemic.

School Opens Early.
High school students went to school at 7:45 o'clock today so they could be dismissed early this afternoon to accompany the football team to Elgonia.

Personal Notes.
Miss Emma Hayes of Scottdale spent Wednesday with Mary Mallinda Grader.

Miss Irene and Beale Sullenger returned to their home at Laureville after spending a few days with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sullenger of Silver street.

Father and Son Both Restored By Tanlac

"Tanlac certainly gives a lot for money," said W. E. Reese, well-known proctor of 313 N. College St., Carlisle, Pa.

"Following a bad case of flu, I found myself in such a weak, nervous condition I could hardly attend to business. I was in this shape a year and could make no headway towards getting back by strength. My stomach was all out of order. I had no appetite, and weighed only a hundred and twenty-two pounds."

"A few bottles of Tanlac gave me complete health with a gain of thirteen pounds. I also have a twelve-year-old son in school who had a nervous trouble and was in very bad shape. Soon after starting him on Tanlac his troubles disappeared and he also gained ten or twelve pounds. Tanlac certainly gives the desired results."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

WEAKNESS OF "BATTLING" SIKI IS IN HIS STOMACH

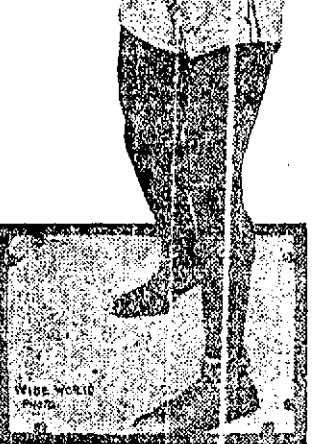

This is "Batling" Siki, the wild and self-styled bad man from Senegal, who, it is said, trains on hard liquor and is a terror in and out of the ring.

Joe have heard of the man who took from mothers without flinching, how he absorbed the shocks of battles with his dome, laughed when he was punched with all the power in Carpenter's arms on the jaw, and smiled when the Frenchman looked at him in blank amazement.

But he is human and he has a weakness. It's not in the region of his head, where so many of the present-day boxers direct their attack. The place to whip the Senegalese is through his stomach, and that is where, sure as fate, Dempsey, if he ever meets the African, will cut him down.

Down through the long line of colored fighters, good or poor, it ever has been their failing: a stomach susceptible to punishment; jaw and head of material to survive any shock administered.

If Siki is whipped, either by Carpenter in a return match or in this country when he comes in quest of new fields to conquer, it won't be through a punching on his head.

Carpenter broke his hands on Siki's head without making the slightest impression on him, but with two punches in the body knocked him down for counts of four and seven.

Falling other fighters of his race, Siki does not appear to have protection for his weakness, which is in the stomach.

Can Siki, therefore, withstand the shocks of a powerful puncher like Dempsey and a master at body attack?

Passing Moods.

"A man in your position must study the passing moods of the people." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, "and he must look out for the moods that pass so quickly, that he'll have to revise the speeches he made in the spring in order to state a chance of being elected in the fall."—Washington Star.

Our Motto—"We Sell to Sell Again"

A HOME PLANNED FOR GOOD LOOKS, COMFORT AND ECONOMY

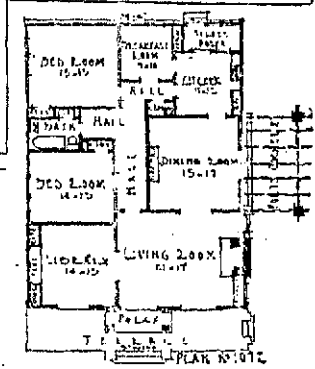

The home illustrated and described in this article is one of fifty, the exterior and floor plans of which are pictured in a book entitled "Modern Homes" which is published by the Southern Pine Association of New Orleans, Louisiana, for free distribution.

The illustration of this little home speaks for itself. We cannot enhance the grace, color and the true "home feeling" which seems to be a part of the house. Any woman can vision this home when properly set amidst green and flowers. It is substantial and solid in appearance but is carefully designed to give the "right-same effect" that is so much desired in the home of today. American love of home, and the increase in home life is being developed by just such types as this delightful plan exhibits. In every way it is a worthwhile plan, and is in step with the best modern tendencies in design.

This plan has many particularly attractive features readily appealing to American women. The house is suitable for either a small or a large family, as the "library" can be used as another bedroom. The breakfast room is large enough for a little girl's room, "all in white and blue," if need be. There are several built-in features which make it easy to furnish this house. The design of the interior of the self-decorative kind, and it will be convenient to make everything seem homelike and well without elaborate decorating or costly spending.

The floors, for example, are of a beautiful golden hue, made of rich sawed Southern Pine flooring, scraped and varnished, or waxed. These are laid throughout the house and are as even and as smooth as the finest dancing floor. There are no "carpet strips" or "throw-rugs" at the doors, the flooring running straight through from room to room. The woodwork around the windows and doors is also Southern Pine, hand smoothed and finished in a very finish.

The doors are the modern one or two-panel kind and finished in the same manner or stained to bring out the beauty of the pine figured wood. The walls are done in pastel colors.

All of the framing lumber is well seasoned Southern Pine, a wood that makes very rigid construction, and of which there is better for tenaciously holding nails and screws. Southern Pine is economical in cost because of its plentiful supply of this wood, and it is readily obtainable every possible grade and dimension at almost any lumber yard.

Peak of Car Shortage Expected November 15

Serious road shortages, depends largely on transportation which appears threatened with severe shortage, peak of which would come about November 15, is opinion of a large road dealer.

Coal shipments have also been given precedence since the majority of work, and this country cannot be maintained indefinitely. Mine labor shows a shortage of 15 per cent and return of men who sought employment in other industries during the suspension has not been as rapid as anticipated.

The women of the house might have been asleep that night, but it was certain the men did not. They were sitting up, and the light of the moon was on their faces. They were waiting for the men to come. The men were not coming. The women were waiting. The men were not coming. The women were waiting.

About an hour after sunrise Yaqui had in with the information that part of the rebels were crossing the river. "That can't mean a thing yet," declared Belding. "But got in the house, boys, and make ready anyway. I'll meet him."

"Belding, you're an officer of the United States. Mexicans are much impressed by show of authority. I've been that often in camp," said Thorne. "Oh, I know. The white-throated Greys are better than any of you, don't mistake me," replied Belding. He was pale with rage, but kept command over himself.

The rangers, with Yaqui and Thorne, stationed themselves at the several windows of the sitting room. Rifles and smaller arms and boxes of shells littered the tables and window seats. No small force of desperadoes could overcome a resistance such as Belding and his men were capable of making.

The horsemen halted at the corral. They were orderly and showed no evidence of hostility. They were, however, fully armed. Belding stalked out to meet them. Apparently a leader wanted to parley with him, but Belding would hear nothing. He shook his head, waved his arms, stamped and fro, and his loud, angry voice could be heard clear back at the house. Whereupon the detachment of rebels retired to the bank of the river, beyond the white post that marked the boundary line, and there they once more drew rank. Belding remained by the corral watching them, evidently still in threatening mood. Presently a single rider left the troop and trotted his horse back down the road.

When He Reached the Corral He Was Seen to Halt and Pass Something to Belding.

When he reached the corral he was seen to halt and pass something to Belding. Then he galloped away to join his comrades. Belding looked at whatever it was he held in his hand, shook his curly head, and started swiftly for the house. He came sliding into the house, holding a piece of soiled paper. "Can't read it now and don't know as I want to," he said, savagely. Not one of the men was able to translate the garbled scrawl. "Shore Mercedes can read it," said Ladd.

Thorne opened a door and called her. She came into the room followed by Nell and Mrs. Belding. "My dear, we want you to read what's written on this paper," said Thorne, as he led her to the table. Mercedes gave the writing one swift glance, then faltered in Thorne's arms. He carried her to a couch, and with Nell and Mrs. Belding began to work over her.

Belding looked at his rangers. "Laddy, it's Rojas all right. How many men has he out there?" "About twenty. Not more."

"We can lick twice that many Greasers," "Shore."

Jim Lash removed his pipe long enough to speak. "Let's save the Greaser off till dark. Then Laddy and the an' Thorne will take Mercedes and hit the trail for Yuma."

"Carbine and Diablo! That awful trail with a woman! Jim, do you forget how many hundreds of men have perished on the Devil's road?" "I reckon I ain't forgettin' nothin'," replied Jim. "The waterholes are full now. There's grass, an' we can do the job in six days."

"It's three hundred miles to Yuma," "Belding! Jim's idea hits me as pretty reasonable," interposed Ladd. "Ladd knows that about the only chance we've got except fightin'."

replied Jim. "Tut, Tut, he ain't meanin' to start a scrap then. You see, I'm figurin' on the army Greaser waitin' in the fort. But how too smart to fight you for nothin'. Rojas may be mean about women, but he's afraid of the U. S. Take my word for it, he'll discover the trail in the morning and light out on it. I reckon with ten hours' start we could travel comfortably."

Belding paced up and down the room. Jim and Ladd whispered together. Gale walked to the window and looked out at the distant group of bandits, and then turned his gaze to rest upon Mercedes. She was conscious now, and her eyes seemed all the larger and bluer for the whiteness of her face. No one but Gale saw the Yaqui in the background looking down upon the Spanish girl. All of Yaqui's looks were strange; but this was singularly so. Gale wondered if the Indian were affected by her loveliness, her helplessness, or her terror.

Presently Belding called his rangers to him, and then Thorne. "Listen to this," he said, earnestly. "I'll go out and have a talk with Rojas. I'll try to reason with him; tell him to think a long time before he sheds blood on Uncle Sam's soil. That he's now after an American's wife! I'll not commit myself, nor will I refuse outright to consider his demands, nor will I show the least fear of him. I'll play for time. If my bluff goes through, well and good."

After dark the four of you, Laddy, Jim, Dick and Thorne, will take Mercedes and my best white horses, and, with Yaqui as guide, circle round through Altar valley to the trail, and head for Yuma. I want you to take the Indian, because in a case of this kind he'll be a godsend. If you get headed or lost or have to circle off the trail, think what it'd mean to have a Yaqui with you. He knows Sonora as no Greaser knows it. He could hide you, find water and grass, when you would absolutely believe it impossible. The Indian is loyal. He has his debt to pay, and he'll pay it, don't mistake me. When you're gone I'll hide Nell so Rojas won't see her if he searches the place. Then I think I could sit down and wait without any particular worry."

The rangers approved of Belding's plan, and Thorne went to the side of his wife. "Mercedes, we're planned to outwit Rojas. Will you tell us what he wrote?"

"Rojas wrote—by his saints and his Virgin—that if I wasn't given—to him—in twenty-four hours—he would set fire to the village—kill the men—carry off the women—hang the children on cactus thorns!"

A moment's silence followed her last halting whisper. Then the Yaqui uttered a singular cry. Gale had heard this once before, and now he remembered it was at the Papago well.

"Look at the Indian," whispered Belding, hoarsely. "Tut—tut if I don't believe he understood every word Mercedes said. And, besides, don't mistake me, if he ever gets near Sonora Rojas there'll be some gory Aztec knife work."

Yaqui had moved close to Mercedes, and stood beside her as she leaned against her husband. She seemed impelled to meet the Indian's gaze, and evidently it was as powerful or hypnotic that it wrought fire within her. But she must have seen or divined what was beyond the others, for she offered him her trembling hand. Yaqui took it and laid it against his body in a strange motion, and bowed his head. Then he stepped back into the shadow of the room.

Belding went outdoors while the rangers took up their former position at the west window. Each and his own somber thoughts. Gale imagined, and knew his own were dark enough. He saw Belding halt at the corral and wave his hand. Then the rebels mounted and came heavily up the road, this time to rein in abreast. Wherever Rojas had kept himself upon the former advance was not clear; but he certainly was prominently in sight now. He made a gaudy, almost a dashing figure. Rojas dismounted and seemed to be listening. Belding made gestures, vehemently bobbed his head, appeared to talk with his body as much as with his tongue. Then Rojas was seen to reply, and after that it was hard that the talk became painful and difficult. It ended finally in what appeared to be mutual understanding. Rojas mounted and rode away with his men, while Belding came tripping back to the house.

As he entered the door his eyes were shining, his big hands were clenched, and he was breathing audibly. "You can rope me if I'm not loosed!" he burst out. "I went out to conciliate a red-handed little murderer, and—well, I've no suitable name handy. I started my bluff and got along pretty well, but I forgot to mention that Mercedes was Thorne's wife. And what do you think? Rojas swore he loved Mercedes and he'd marry her right here in Fortson. He swore he would give up robbing and killing people, and take her away from Mexico. He has gold—jewels. He swore if he didn't get her nothing mattered. He'd do anything without her. . . . And he's the strange thing. I believe him! He was cold as ice, and all that. Never saw a Greaser like him. Anyway, without my asking he said for me to think it over for a day and then word talk again."

"Shore we're born lucky!" ejaculated Ladd. "I reckon Rojas'll be smart enough to string his outfit across the few trails out of Fortson River," remarked Jim.

"That needn't worry us. All we want is dark to come," replied Belding. "Yaqui will slip through. If we think any lucky stars let it be for the Indian. You may go to Yuma in six days and maybe in six weeks. You may have a big fight. Laddy, take the car. Dick will pick his Remington. All of you go gun and horse. But the main thing is a pack that'll be light enough for swift travel, yet one that'll keep you from starving in the desert."

The rest of that day passed swiftly. The sun set, twilight fell, then night closed down, fortunately a night slightly overcast. Gale and the white horses pass his door like silent ghosts. Even Blanco Diablo made no sound, and that far was indeed a tribute to the Yaqui. Gale went out to put his saddle on Blanco Sol. The horse rubbed a soft nose against his shoulder. Then Gale returned to the sitting room. There was nothing new to do but wait and say good-bye. Mercedes came clad in leather chaps and coat, a slim strippling of a cowboy, her dark eyes flashing. Her beauty could not be hidden, and now hope and courage had fired her blood. Gale drew Nell into his arms. "Dearest, I'm going—soon. . . . And maybe I'll never see you."

"Dick, do—don't say it," sobbed Nell, with her head on his breast. "I might never come back," he went on, steadily. "I love you—I've loved you ever since the first moment I saw you. Do you love me?"

"Yes, yes. Oh, I love you so! I never knew it till now. I love you so, Dick. I'll be safe and I'll wait—and hope and pray for your return."

"If I come back—no—when I come back, will you marry me?" "I—oh yes!" she whispered, and returned his kiss.

Belding was in the room speaking softly. "Nell, darling, I must go," said Dick. "I'm a selfish little coward," cried Nell. "It's so splendid of you all. I ought to glory in it, but I can't. . . . Fight if you must, Dick. Fight for that lovely persecuted girl. I'll love you—the more. . . . Oh! Good-bye! Good-bye!"

SLAVE TO TRAVELING MANIA

Dra of the Stanchest Monarchist Papers Gives Spao to a Sensational Article Obviously From an Authoritative Source—Says William Had Seen Boris a Laborer He Might Have Perished as a Tramp—Worries Other Crowned Heads.

Significant indeed are the signs of the times when the most resolute of junkies and most loyal of monarchists seriously and publicly discuss the question of William von Hohenzol-lern's sanity. For many years, indeed ever since early in his reign, opposents have impugned his sanity. They have recalled the acknowledged strain of insanity which showed itself in former generations of his family, and have also stressed the well-known fact that for nearly all his life he has suffered from a chronic and most severe affection of the ear, which might readily involve a lesion of the brain. But now it is not his foes but his friends who are saying these things.

The most sensational of such utterances appears in that stanchest of monarchist papers, the "Berliner Staatsbürger Zeitung," which gives prominent place to a communication obviously from an important and authoritative source. In part it follows:
"A mere layman is generally quite incapable of detecting any mental derangement, or, if he does perceive it, of giving the sufferer suitable treatment. When, some twenty years ago, I visited an asylum for the insane in the Rhineland province, and was shown by the director through all his wards,
I was so strangely affected that I actually began to doubt my own mental sanity, and finally asked if there really existed any mentally normal men.
The director was open to conviction.
It seemed as though he had expected my question or as though he himself had often thought of it. (Incidentally, ten years later he himself became insane.) He replied that perfectly normal men were in fact very rare. But to this circumstance he attached little importance. In the world there go about men who, though abnormal, are not suspected of insanity. Confined in the asylums are the patients who are dangerous to the community, though some of them may seem sane."
"That the violent insane are dangerous to the community needs no detailed explanation. Many patients need only the temporary care of an asylum."

The Ex-Kaiser's Mania.
"The ex-kaiser suffers from psychopathic vagans, or travelling mania. An internal unrest urged him to lead a nomadic life. Men afflicted with this disease are not capable of performing their duties in regulated work. And William, born as a laborer, he might have perished as a tramp. As a member of the middle class he could have become, under certain circumstances, a capable commercial traveler. His abnormality became dangerous for the community only through the circumstances that, in accordance with tradition, he had to accept and adopt the calling of his father and lead the destinies of a people of 60-80,000, which he was not able at all to do. That the thing went wrong was really not his fault, but the fault of the monarchical German constitution, which does not trust the direction of the realm to the most capable but to the man designated by birth."
"When the ex-kaiser died to Holland his position moved him to disregard safety with his big traveling automobile. Holland is a little country and the imperial car ran at a speed of 100 kilometers an hour, and the imperial horn signal sounding everywhere made the Hollanders nervous.

The Dutch government, thereupon, without a moment's hesitation, interned the kaiser in its Austerlitz castle. The order for confinement was diplomatically made, for the alleged reason that only in this way could the Dutch government assure the kaiser's safety. The confinement to the premises of the castle was for the prisoner the hardest blow of his life. Since then he has spent a great part of the day roaming about in the wood and in the meadows, or reading books of travel so as to procure for himself a substitute for his passion.

Not on Traveling.
Traveling was to such a degree a fixed idea of the kaiser that when affairs of state or the fact that there was no one to be visited, made traveling impossible to him he sometimes passed a night in his parlor car, which stood in the railroad preserve, only five minutes from his new palace, under the pretext that he had to be in Berlin at an impossible hour the next morning. At the beginning of the summer of 1926 he indulged in this strange pastime until one evening in June the empress found the courage, when he was about driving to the station, to threaten that she would visit him in his bachelor rhode. William then for several months abandoned this habit,
and this was fortunate because a conspiracy threatened to break out among the domestics, who did not care to sleep so often in their clothes. They threatened to inform members of the left in the reichstag about his majesty's wandering and tell them that the entire railway traffic was much deranged when his majesty passed the night in the station.

"More than a hundred officials and workmen found the courage, when he was about driving to the station, to
his bachelor rhode. William then for several months abandoned this habit,
and this was fortunate because a conspiracy threatened to break out among the domestics, who did not care to sleep so often in their clothes. They threatened to inform members of the left in the reichstag about his majesty's wandering and tell them that
the entire railway traffic was much deranged when his majesty passed the
night in the station."

Worries Danish King.
"The first imperial travels were to
St. Petersburg, Vienna, Copenhagen,
London. In Copenhagen the emperor declared that he liked it there so much that he would return every summer.
The Danish king almost fell from his chair. It is considered that Denmark is but a small country and that the king of this minor state has only limited means at his disposal, one will understand his dismay. In consideration of the Danish poverty the czar, whenever he visited his father-in-law, paid liberally the cost incurred by him and his retinue. The German emperor, however, whose retinue consisted of 60

HIGH BLOOD
PRESSUREPhysician's Discovery Safely Reduces
It to Normal and Dizzy Spells Disappear.

If your blood pressure is too high you cannot pass a life insurance examination.
Perhaps you don't know whether you have this trouble or not, but if you have occasional dizzy spells, shortness of breath, pains in the head, hot flashes, are nervous, moody or don't sleep well, your blood pressure is probably higher than it ought to be even if you don't realize it.
Norma, the prescription of a Buffalo physician, reduces high blood pressure and when this result is accomplished all the ailments caused by this abnormal condition will quickly disappear.
Connellsville Drug Co., and reliable druggists everywhere have a steady demand for Norma—it is purely expec-heads, never spoke of money. He rather asked military parade a worship suitors, gals, opera, burlesque and the like. No wonder that a panic broke out when the puffed-up Berliners announced themselves. Subsequently, whenever the kaiser proposed a visit to Copenhagen the Danish ambassador in Berlin was directed to call attention to the sickness of the queen, who needed rest, and so that the visit should be postponed.

"Czar Alexander was more outspoken in his refusal of William's visits. He, to be sure, had no reason to fear that the Berliners would eat him poor and bare, as at the court of Copenhagen, nor could he allege as an excuse that the czar's was not strong enough to stand the excitement of such visits. The czar simply wrote to his Berlin ambassador that he refused to be disturbed in his retirement by that young man of Berlin. When Bismarck during a discussion suggested this letter into the kaiser's hands William grew pale after perusing it."
The appearance of this astonishing publication in one of the strongest Prussian monarchist organs has aroused speculation upon its possible connection with the forthcoming second marriage of the ex-kaiser, to which most of his family, and especially his eldest son, the former crown prince, are known to be violently opposed. "There is even gossip that a Hohenzollern family council may declare the ex-kaiser non compos mentis, and therefore incapable of reclaiming the throne, whereupon the succession would pass to the crown prince."

BRAZILIANS TAKE UP RADIO

Powerful Broadcasting Station at Rio Janeiro.

The radiophone craze, while now becoming an old story in the United States and other countries, has just hit Rio Janeiro.
A powerful broadcasting station has been erected on the summit of Mount Corcovado, overlooking the city, and besides the government buildings many commercial and private houses are being outfitted with receiving sets with which to "listen in" on the daily programs of concerts, news reports and lectures.
Other cities in the vicinity also are picking up the report, which has been heard as far as Sao Paulo. This is believed to be the first big broadcasting station to begin operation in South America.

A Wise Choice.
Oldbath—Weren't you rather reckless to marry a widow? She's heard all the old classic excuse before.
Gaysport—That's why. I knew her first husband and knew just the line of action she'd fall for.

Holding Out for the Legit.
"Do you think motion pictures are educational?"
"Yes," replied Mr. Stormington Barnes, "although I won't say they have gotten so far along as to teach people how to act."
